

JUST ARRIVED

A New Line of

Rich Cut Glass

Including:

Vases, Cologne Bottles,
Celery Trays, Nappies, Fern Dishes,
Fruit Bowls and Saucers,
Sugar Bowls and Creamers, Etc.

E. O. HALL & SON, Ltd.
Household Department

An Electric Iron
In the Handiest Thing About the House

By pressing a button it is ready for service, either hot or cold, or the family ironing.

NOTHING TO GO OUT OF ORDER, SAFE AND SANITARY.

The Hawaiian Electric Co., Ltd.

Wash, Ironing, Laundry, Dry Cleaning, Tailoring, Repairing, Draping, Alterations, Tailoring, Tailored Suits.

Union-Pacific Transfer Co.

Limited

Supply Department

or Laundry, Wash, Ironing, Laundry, Dry Cleaning,

A. & A.

Real Estate

63 Merchant Street.

Phone 4364

National Fabric Wit-Lite Spring

Coyne Furniture Co.

REX HITCHCOCK STARS IN GREAT HARVARD-PRINCETON STRUGGLE

Former Punahoa Boy Already Picked for Position on All-American Team

Score another for mighty athletes from Hawaii!

Rex Hitchcock of Molokai, former football star of Punahoa, is repeating his gridiron prowess on greater fields in the Harvard-Princeton game of November 2, which Harvard won by a score of 16 to 6, the youth from Hawaii was one of the mainstays of the big Crimson team.

Hitchcock impressed one as a leading candidate for a place on the All-American tackle team at tackle, as the dispute that was flushed from Cambridge after the game.

The following account is from the San Francisco Call's special correspondent:

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 2.—Harvard defeated Princeton for the first time in six years, in a roaring battle of the gridiron, by a score of 16 to 6, in the Harvard-Yale game. Thereby hangs a tale of Charlie Brickett and his marvelous kicking. This youth, who represented the United States at the Olympic games of the last eleven editions of the contest, dropped two brilliant goals from the field, kicked another from placement while standing a full 47 yards from the goalposts, and so scored nine points of the Crimson's total. Not content with this he plunged and tore his way through the Princeton line for three valuable gains, the most important being in a touchdown scored by Hitchcock in the last few minutes of play. Brickett was the rock on which the Tigers split, and Brickett was the very life of the Harvard attack and the soul, almost, of the defense. He dropped from sheer exhaustion and a blow on the head just before the game ended and Wendell was substituted, but he suffered no ill effects on the word of those close to the team and having accidents in practice will be ready to meet the same brave American. During two hours from today are probably against Yale in the culminating game of the season.

The Tigers scored one touchdown in the second period, two during and well executed forward passes for gains of 20 and 30 yards respectively. Harvard Caught Anteep.

A sudden change in the attack caught the Harvard players off their guard, and Waller, after being pulled in the second pass, scrambled to his feet and struggled over the goal line at the extreme corner of the field.

The next cut for a run at the goal, and with three six points, Princeton had to be content. At no other time were the Tigers without serious chances of the Crimson goal line, and at no time were they able to break down the Harvard defense for one of these marathons down the field, which had marked their play a week ago.

The score tells the story. Harvard had the better team, as the cleaves took the field today and Harvard well deserved the victory, which avenged in part the defeat of a year ago and the many efforts of Princeton to regain lost ground.

The Tigers had, rather, the better of the first half and led the field with the score of 6 to 3 in their favor, but they were completely outplayed in the second half in all essential points, actually losing more ground by straight rushing than they made and playing in a way that bordered on the panic.

The Witt's portion, usually so eloquent, was raised to the point of almost utter failing, and denunciatory invective was taken with the former players deep in their own territory, which indicated all too clearly the intent of their attack against the Harvard defense and their willingness to stake all on the outcome.

It was a perfect day for football, with the air cool, clear and bracing. The field was a trifling alibi in physics, but on the whole was in good condition after the season of rain. The temporary seats at the open end of the stadium were not filled, but otherwise the rows upon rows which seemed to pile upward were crowded to the capacity of fully 20,000 men and women who showed their love for football in an uncertain way.

The game was full of tense moments and so many exciting situations that interest did not flag for a moment. There was organization in the cheering and some singing, while a mass hand-blared forth from time to time, but this was nothing to the spontaneous shout, or, better yet, the spontaneous roar, which went up from time to time as one team or the other gained a momentary advantage.

Other Harvard stars,

Charles Brickett, as told, was the outstanding star. He was like the Sam White of a year ago. A word, however, must be said for Hardwick, who did his full share in Harvard's rushing attack, and of Bradies, who took Captain Wendell's place early in the game and was a power in the secondary line of defense. Pennington, the Crimson leftend, was almost a whole team in himself, while Hitchcock impressed one as a leading candidate for a place on the All-American team at tackle.

Waller played a particularly vigorous game for Princeton, but none of the others stood out individually, even "Holy" Baker and DeWitt falling to shine.

Harvard's satisfaction in defeating Princeton was clearly indicated by the wild dance of joy as the game came to an end. The undergraduates took possession of the gridiron, and danced their way about and under the goal post with a ruthless disregard for their voices and their health. Hats were tossed over the bar and trampled under feet, and nobody cared. The band then led the way to the training house, where a final cheer was given for the team in general and Brickett in particular.

The employed boys will meet at the regular Monday night bean supper in Cooke Hall tonight for the purpose of organizing two more clubs under

# # # #
# # # #
# # # #
#	FOOTBALL RESULTS, NOV. 2
#	Harvard 16, Princeton 6.
#	Harvard freshmen 11, Princeton freshmen 9.
#	Cornell 10, Williams 2.
#	Bucknell 13, Lafayette 0.
#	Minnesota State 14, University of Pennsylvania 0.
#	Carlisle Indians 30, Lehigh 14.
#	Swarthmore 20, Ursinus 0.
#	Michigan 20, South Dakota 7.
#	Wisconsin 20, Chicago 12.
#	Purdue 21, Northwestern 6.
#	Dartmouth 20, Amherst 0.
#	Brown 12, Vermont 7.
#	Indiana 33, Earlham 11.
#	Washington 13, Drake 23.
#	Colorado Mines 14, Colorado Arches 9.
#	Colorado 10, Colorado college 7.
#	Nebraska 7, Missouri 0.
#	Oklahoma 6, Kansas 5.
#	Utah Aggies 54, Wyoming 0.
#	Haskell 18, Denver 10.
#	Utah 19, Montana 3.
#	Oregon 2, Idaho 9.
#	# # # # #

play in DASH.

A few minutes before 2 o'clock the officials introduced Captain Wendell of Harvard to Captain Pendleton of Princeton as if the five players were royal persons.

The result of the long game Princeton kick-off and Harvard a slight advantage in the wind.

It was Harvard, out on Princeton's 4-yard line when the game ended.

The opening lineup was as follows:

Harvard Position Princeton Andrews

Fenton Left end Phillips

Stone Left tackle Sheek

Pennington Left guard Bluthenthal

Farmentier Center Logas

Trumbull Right guard Pendleton

Hitchcock Right tackle Dunlap

Coddige Right end J. S. Baker

Gardner Quarterback Pendleton

H. Hardwick Left halfback Waller

Brickett Right halfback DeWitt

Substitutions:

Harvard—Wigginworth for Farmentier, Drisco for Trumbull, O'Brien for Coddige, Lingard for Brickett, Prokes for Wendell.

Princeton—W. Sweet for Logan, Ballin for Pendleton, Wright for Dunlap, Pendleton for Wright, Strelf for Pendleton (at end), E. Baker for Pendleton (as half-halfback).

Clinchian—W. P. Crawford, Trinity reverend; umpire, C. S. Williams, University of Pennsylvania; head linesman, Lieutenant H. N. Nelly, West Point.

Scoring—First half.

The Tigers scored one touchdown in the second period, two during and well executed forward passes for gains of 20 and 30 yards respectively.

Harvard Caught Anteep.

A sudden change in the attack caught the Harvard players off their guard, and Waller, after being pulled in the second pass, scrambled to his feet and struggled over the goal line at the extreme corner of the field.

The next cut for a run at the goal,

and with three six points, Princeton

had to be content. At no other time

were the Tigers without serious

chances of the Crimson goal line,

and at no time were they able to break down the Harvard defense for one of these marathons down the field, which had marked their play a week ago.

The score tells the story. Harvard

had the better team, as the cleaves

took the field today and Harvard well

deserved the victory, which avenged in part the defeat of a year ago and the many efforts of Princeton to regain lost ground.

The Tigers had, rather, the better

of the first half and led the field

with the score of 6 to 3 in their favor,

but they were completely outplayed in

the second half in all essential points,

actually losing more ground by straight

rushing than they made and playing in a way that bordered on the panic.

The next cut for a run at the goal,

and with three six points, Princeton

had to be content. At no other time

were the Tigers without serious

chances of the Crimson goal line,

and at no time were they able to break

down the Harvard defense for one of these marathons down the field, which

had marked their play a week ago.

The score tells the story. Harvard

had the better team, as the cleaves

took the field today and Harvard well

deserved the victory, which avenged in

part the defeat of a year ago and the many efforts of Princeton to regain lost ground.

The Tigers had, rather, the better

of the first half and led the field

with the score of 6 to 3 in their favor,

but they were completely outplayed in

the second half in all essential points,

actually losing more ground by straight

rushing than they made and playing in a way that bordered on the panic.

The next cut for a run at the goal,

and with three six points, Princeton

had to be content. At no other time

were the Tigers without serious

chances of the Crimson goal line,

and at no time were they able to break

down the Harvard defense for one of these marathons down the field, which

had marked their play a week ago.

The score tells the story. Harvard

had the better team, as the cleaves

took the field today and Harvard well